For further particulars of his brief but brilliant life, go to the miller and you will be tolled.

We have but to write the epitaph, and this is We have but to write the epitaph, and this is but a line—thus:

Red Winter—setal 5 mos. 1 day—not dead but changed.

He was buried on the corner—the Doleful corner—and with dolerous pomp. The mourners were numerous—very numerous. Few work weeds on their hats, though the majority carried weeds in their mouths. Unfortunately an over-zealous officer mistook the uature of the gathering, and charged upon them like a Zonave—or like Horaco Greeley crossing a Kanasa creek—arresting several of the chief mourners. The mistake, however, was rectified, and the officer was released by paying the parties for their trouble. It is worthy of remark that several devoted friends followed Red Winter to the end, and were baried in the same grave. And, applied to them, this scripturality has a beautiful signification, "Lovely in their lives, in their death they were not divided."

The following "oppytaff" was picked up by a gestleman going house corner-wise, long after the obsequies were ended. It was written on a shingle that once bore the name of a grain dealer, who has unfortunately "gone before," and was evidently penned by an enemy of the deceased:

THE CITY

MEXICO. eception of the Manifest and Decree of Juarez-Monarchist Forces Rob-bingon a Large Scale-Dreadful Con-dition of the Country.

On the 19th ult, the manifests of Junera and his decree nationalizing the Church property, were received here and published in full by the official journal, under the belief that these documents would excite the population against the Government at Vera Cruz. The publication and general distribution of these pupers from the Constitutional Government did create a pre-Government at Vera Croz. The publication and general distribution of these spiegers from the Constitutional Government did create a profound sensition, but it was very different in its kind from that anticipated by the mionarchists. The intelligent, reflecting masses, natives as well as foreigners, felt that there was still hope for the country, could be measures announced by the Constitutional Government be carried out; and this hope in the redemption of the country is founded in the belief that the United States. Republic, in the full power of ker high moral right, and in obedience to her grand destiny, will fully sustain the Liberals in perfecting those measures so necessary to the peace, prosperity to will fully austain the Liberals in perfecting those measures so necessary to the peace, prosperity and well-being of both countries.

The most significant fact in counsection with the publication of the papers from the Constitutional Government, is that interior bonds, the market value of which was five certs on the dollar, are now selling at ten cents, and the tendency is upward.

The effect of the manifesto and decree of Juarce in the city of Mexico, so different formwhere. rez in the city of Mexico, so different from what the clergy in their bigotry anticipated, was exthe elergy in their property actly what might have been anticipated with the party itself. The rage of the clergy knew n party itself. The rage of the clergy knew n by the moly and it was arranged that a numbe of Indians, dressed up for the occasion, shoul run through the streets, crying "Death to the hereties!" "Down with the foreigners!" &c Since I have been in this city I have noticed

Since I have been in this city I have noticed a foreign state of mind in the population, a feeling of uncertainty, a dread that something fear-ful might happen any day. Here we had industrial might happen any day. Here we had industrial that the control of the property would do if they had the power. It was their intention to feel their way up to another St. Bartholomew massacre—to destroy at one blow all edpoxious persons. But to the relief of all and the utter confusion of the priesthood, the affair failed entirely—fell dead, never to rise again. Some interest was manifested to see the ceremony of excommunication. Half the people and Orizaba. Jalapa, Orizaba, Cordova, and other towns within the command of Robles are undergoing a ruinous process. Half the people of property in Orizaba have been imprisoned for refusal or inability to pay the amounts imposed by the robbers. Marquez, with an army of 3,000 men, marched up to Tepic, robbing right and left. He took Tepic, but advices just received state that he has evacuated that place and is marching back to Gundalajara. Woll, with 2,000 men, is at Gunnajato, robbing like all the rest. Veloz is at therefare. It is the harvest time of these military assassins and thieves. The condition of Gundalajara, Gunnajusto, and other points occupied by these armed bodies, is frightful. Rapine and bloodshed are the order of the day. Fields are neglected, business abandoned, and citizens who are able lies to other parts.

This is what the Monarchist faction here is sleing, not only with the approbation, but with the assistance and at the instigation of the English and French Ministers. If seems as though the demon of the Pagan Church had entered the breasts of these officials.

nie has had the Presidency wine tin cy for the tenth time, and have no less than er, Floyd, Flourney and Botts. New York has had the Presidency twice, and the Vice-Presidency seem times, and each party, in that State, is now pressing a candidate upon the two great National parties. One would ima-gine that Virginia and New York have had about their full share of executive officers and that they ought to be satisfied at least for lew years to come. Massachusetts has fur nished two Presidents and three Vice-Presi nished two Fresidents and three Vice-Fresidents, Fennesylva-nia, a President and Vice-Fresident, New Hampshire a President, Louisiana ditto, Ken-tucky and South Carolina each two Vice-Presi-

And yet charging to the Americans all these the West.

It can be jodged from the foregoing analysis how much voice and weight the West has had to the Government, how much influence are exercises in the councils of the Nation. And the question arises, how long will she reinding content with her inforcer, disreputable position? Are the people of the Great West ready to assert their equal rights, and claim their due share in the administration of Government? There is no hope for an affirmative answer from the Democratic party, in the West. If a President should happen to be selected from their ranks, he will meat assuredly be a guard alareholder, like Douglas, or a miserable old doughface like Gass, and for all beneficial results to the West, might as well be taken from two warpins or Georgia. When the alayer breeding Democracy cross the line of Mason and Dixon for a President, they always take a reliable doughface who knows no North when he becomes President. Whether the next tooke should half on Bright, or Douglas, or Mason and Dixon for a President, they always take a reliable doughface who knows no North when he becomes President. Whether the next tooke should half on Bright, or Douglas, or Mason and Dixon for a President, they always take a reliable doughface who knows no North when he becomes President. Whether the next tooke should be the candidate.

If the nighty valley of the Massinsippi is to correise its proper influence at Washington, a callable for President smust betaken from the Expellican ranks in the West. A candidate for President smust betaken from the Expellican ranks in the West. A candidate for President smust betaken from the Legislasy mountains. His knowledge of the West is derived from towards and trailitions. A residuate from towards and trailitions. The single for the first and allot them sinked places upon the table. Province and and the first and a servince that he is a continued to the service of the first and collection was a proper making to President from towards and trailitions. A invent improbable falsehoods with the facility of the N.Y. Herald, or dress them up with equal desterity, or pass them upon the public with a graver face. It lives by publishing sensation lies. When the news market is dell, Bemesti invents a canard and roudens for its truth, and and the more abserd and improbable, the harder he swears it is a fact. After it becomes stale or is exploded on his hands, he drops it and starts another humbug, which he writes up until the novelty is gone, and then abandons it, and a week afterwards is ready to assert this benever gave the story currency or credit.

The last considerable canard that he has got off, is the following:

It is particularly deserving of notice that a large portion of the alare fleet is, as we have large portion of the alare fleet is, as we have large portion of the alare fleet is, as we have large portion of the alare fleet is, as we have have been treacher-oursy betrayed, greasly ewindled and uncere-ously betrayed, grea the Heraid has had no run. The groundlings did not bite; it has fallen still born on Bennett's hands; he will soon drop it and invent somelew England ports. All those seaboard cities

Democreta."

Take the port of New York for example. The dough-faces there are worse than the slave dealers of New Orleans. The Castle Garden "Union Savers" and the Dead Rabbit D den "Union Savers and the Death Rabon Se-mocracy are Jast the material to support the African Slave trade. The one will furnish the capital and ressels, and the other the crews and cut throats. The pro-slavery majority in New York city at the last Presidential election was York city at the last Presidential election was 24,000. In the New England ports, particularly in Boston, the shipping class are mostly doughfaces of the baser sort, and vote the straight Democratic ticket. The depraved rabble found in the streets there, as everywhere else, are Democrats to a man. These men have few conscientions scruples against kidnapping negroes from the coast of Africa for the Southern markets. They conceive it to be no worse than the attempt of their party to force slaves into free Kansas. They reason that, if it is Democratic to drag blacks fram Virginia to Kansas, it is equally Democratic to bring blacks from Africa to Florida. If the civilized, christianized American colored men have no rights which they are bound to respect, what rights have the "savages" in Africa, that should restrain their Democratic enpidity? Democrats of the Eastern States steal the negroes from Africa; Democrats of the South buy them, and Democrats of the West wink at the traffic, and Schuyler Colfax.

The pro-slavery papers of Indiana hate auteur the bold and able Representative of the IXth district. They never miss an opportunity The first and the state of the retext to bark at him.

And then the Chicago Times takes up the chorus as follows:

"Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana, announces in his own paper that he will not deny he is a Republican candidate for the Presidency. We fear his needesty will interfere with his prospects. He is so haskward that his friends will not be able to prevail on him to push himself."

Perhaps the Times supposes that a lie and ancer of this sort are smart. Colfax made no such "announcement in his own paper." He has never said, intimated, or written that such an idea was in his mind. He is a candidate for the Presidency to the extent that the editor of the Times or Sentined, is up for that office, and no mora. If the Times can think of nothing else to alledge about the editor of the South Bend Register, common coursesy would admonish it to allence.

The Western Banner (Catholic) pointed out, a week or two ago, some official or statistica table, in which it was shown that the Irish Cath table, in which it was shown that the Irish Cath-olies had some where, at some time, upon some occasion, behaved themselves as well as other folks, whereupon it called our attention to the isolated fact. We claim the attention of that pious print for the following abstract from the the distinct classification, but such is the fac And yet charging to the Americans all this children of fereign parentage and the unfortunate victims of foreign habits and example and there is still left 30 per cent of foreigner, and of these 70 per cent are Irish.

We must rescue the government from the con-trol of those official cormorants, who have ever guided its growing interests for their own soliah guided its growing interests for their own scinan purposes, or else we are hopelessly doomed. Should the Republican party-triumph at the approaching election, we hope to see the enactment of a law, making it a crimical offence for any State officer to become a stockholder, director, or have any agency, either directly or indirectly, in Railroad Companies or banking instituted. tor, or have any agency, either directly or indirectly, in Railroad Companies or banking institutions, within the State. Had such a provision been incorporated in our State Constitution we apprehend the condition of our finances would have materially differed, and the State Treasury doubtless suffered less depletion than existing circumstances indicate. So too, a like cautionary measure might have saved your State from an executive robbery of two hundred and twenty-three thousand dollars. Every State in this union is amply able, and we believe does pay its officers a sufficient salary to remunerate them for their services—which should be constined to the legitimate duties of their respective offices. As an example of bad policy and undoubted malfeasance in office, please witness the Railroad history of Minnesota. Our Governor is a Railroad Director, and being officially a bogus institution, we have a right to presume is more or less interested in bogus Banking. Being particeps criminis, the Treasurer and Auditor may also be reasonably classed in the same category. It will be recollected that the amendment to our State Constitution, which was imposed upon the people through the influence of "Baccoba" in his rural retreat, in his quiet botrough, occasionally renturing forth into the world, but quickly returning to his birthplace and his home. But everybody knows that the Raccoba Bank was born in Olineago, or Springfield, or Milwankes or some other city—that is never had a home, that the bills ennce out, henceforth have no owner, not redeem, but as long as the people allow themselves to be awindled by taking them and regarding them as currency, so long they "go," and when the people gettired of so doing and become willing to assume that risk, delay and expense of presenting and protesting, then the Auritor sells the Stocks and closes the affairs of the bank, and how does the "Stock Secured" currency of such banks turn out? The six per-cent bonds of Missouri form the greater part of the saccurity of the Illinois and Wisconsin banks. These stock are now worth eighty-three cents on the dollar in posed upon the people through the influence of the "forty thieves" and their villainous counter-part in our own State, authorizes the Governor, part in our own State, authorizes the Governor, on the evidence of the Chief Engineer and two Directors, in relation to the progress of the work, to execute and deliver to the several companies $50,000 for every ten miles of read graded, ready for the superstructure. We can safely calculate that the Engineer is a witness, equally interested with the two Directors, and upon this testimony, of course the Governor's impartial judgment decides that all the requirements of law are met, consequently he shell sout the State bonds to his brother Directors to the tune of two million dollars. Another provision of the law requires the securither provision of the law requires the securi other provision of the law requires the securi-ty of the companies on their "roads, lands and franchises," to be transferred in first mortgage bonds to the State Treasurer corresponding in amount and simultaneous with the issue of the State bonds. The Auditor, by the provisions of the Banking law, is authorized to receive of the Banking inw, is authorized to receive State stocks as a security for the redemption of currency, at their real market value. Your readers have not not forgotten how imploringly Wall street was belabored last winter, in pursuit of purchasers for Minnesota State bonds, and how significant the failure. But, said Mr. North, "it will never do to give it up so," and then with the work of the property of the pr at sixty to seventy eents on the dollar.

Some of these men, living in Chicago, St.
Louis and other cities, own six or eight banks apiece, and it is to fill the purses of such men that the public submit to this wholesale swindle.

We are equally interested with you of Illinois in this matter. Our interests are so interwoven that what proves injurious to Illinois is as much so to Iowa. We ryloise that even at this early period of our history we have the "State Bank of lowa. But it will be readily seen that it is indeed hard for specie paying banks, located right on the battle ground, to compete with rell determined zeal, the city of that immortal Bank of Jowa. But it will be readily seen that it is indeed hard for specie paying banks, located right on the batis ground, to compete with the irredeemable currency of Illinois and Wisconsin. The Branches of our State Bank have been prompt in paying gold for every dollar of their money which has been presented for redeemption, and were the three hundred banks in Illinois and Wisconsin compelled to redeem, it would so equalize the burden as to make it light for all. Our banks recognize the fact that when there is no produce going forward to make the three rectange with, coin must be shuped, and must come from the banks. But they labor under a great disadvantage in such a one-sided game. where from the nature of things, and out of due respect to their sainted patron, all men are presumed to be housst, a negotiator was found.
With an explicit understanding that he should join in the spoils, and not in reality be victimized, a sale was accomp-ished. Of its bona fide, nature let the people judge. After this modus operandi Director North hastens before Auditor Dunbar with an affidarit verifying a sale at 95

Dunbar with an affidavit verifying a sale at 95 cents on the dollar. Hereafter all persons having State bonds to barter, deposited them with said Auditor, and received in exchange an amount of wild-cat equal to their pretended value. Thus, in a twinkle, Mr. Governor, Auditor, Treasurer, Railroad Director, and Engineer, besame Bankers, and before their fraud and tricking is discovered, the country is deluged with rotten currency. To make the matter worse, our Banking law permits an exchange of security at any time with the Auditor, hence, an honest Banker, through the suspicions of the public, must fail to secure a circuunder a great disadvantage in such a one-sided game.

The duty of the people is to take this money upder profest, just as in a community where old boots or any other article was circulated as "money," the people might be obliged to put up with it and endure the evil for a short time, but they would do it under protest.

The duty of the press is to agistate the matter—to make it a subject for daily discussion—to hold it up before the people—to exhibit it to them in every light, to sail their attention to the location of these institutions—to tell them to look upon the map and see where Eau Claire is, at which point there are about haif a dozen banks; see where Eagle Point, Brünkerhoff, Genekon, Baraboto, Wanpacca, &c., &c., are, and to count the number of banks there are all along the shores of "Gatchee Gumee." "in the woods and in the feulands," and among the shady and swampy retreats of the skunk, the raccoon and the wild-cat. Thus the people will be led to look beneath the surface of the specions of the public, must fail to secure a circu-lation for legitimate currency. We have en-deavored to give a brief history of wild-catting in Minnesota, and a slight knowledge of the chief in Minnesota, and a slight knowledge of the chief actors in the business, and we must be justified South had 11, the East 15, the West none.

During the last 20 years the South has filled this office 17 years, and the East 3 years, which is no lest, seeing that the North supplies all the seamen, and has ignored the more seaport property to protect in case of war.

South had 11, the East 15, the West none.

During the last 20 years the South has filled this office 17 years, and the East 3 years, which is no lest, seeing that the North supplies all the seamen, and has ignored the seamen, and has ignored the seamen, and the seamen in asserting that the profession of a counter-feiter is more honorable and fair—yet they are all-kanarable men. dise we wish to buy, yet in all of our river towns, and in every interior town, unsechants can be counted by sources who never buy a dollar's worth of goods is, and rarely send only in the worth of goods is. Their stores are filled with goods from St. Louis, and their produce goes there, and it the writer's certain knewledge, the tendency in this section is more and more to St. Louis. And the reason is very evident, and often and truly assigned by plain, practical, common sense business men, that when produce is shipped to Chicago, they are paid in a depreciated currency, two per cent. below par, and St. Louis with the gold, or its equivalent, in her hand to pay for the produce, gets it, of course. Let your Chicago merchants think of this, and if they do not believe, in owlet them travel over the ground and ascertain the faces, and then believe, and the believe, in the secondary to the plainty to be seen, until the multitude of our merchants becomes wholly alienated from them and Lien's they will believe. It is "the safe appeal of truth to lime." se editor of the Rocky Mountain News has on a prospecting tour to the Rocky Mountain s, which he reports as follows: July 20. tains, which he reports as follows: July 20.

In about seven miles travel we crossed Clear Creek, to the Spanish Diggings; we suppose there are about 300 men at work here, and perhaps 1500 on the creek generally. All hands were lirely, and mining was the order of the day. There are five leads being opened here, on one of which a claim owned by Smith and Merville, was sold for $7,000; it prospected from one of who delars to the pan. The claims on this creek are generally paying from $3 to $25 to the man per day, and the Mexicans at $25 to the man per day, and the Mexicans at $25 to the man per day, and the Mexicans to $25 to the man per day, and the Mexicans at $25 to the man per day, and the Mexicans to $25 to the man per day, and the Mexicans at half feet of one claim sold-for $1,500. There is a large amount of gold being taken out of these bank diggings, but shortly the water will be lower, and it is expected the creek will be turned in many places, and will yield abundant crops of gold.

Hence we traveled S. S. W. for about thirty miles, prospecting but little, but making observations of the surface indications, which were satisfactory, and in some places very flattering. We then turned our course more westward and surmounted the snowy range, and after traversing the montains a short distance forther amply repaid for the difficulties we encountered by fire, (the pines in places burning furiously,) and the rocks jutting out from side to side, obliging us to cross the creek continually, by discovering the most favorable indications of gled were the majority of these Banks owned by parties who, when compelled by the tedious process of law, would redeem their notes, the people might feel more tolerants. But not the least of the evils attending this system is, liging us to cross the creek continually, by dis-evering the most favorable indications of gold we had yet seen.

For some miles the creek runs parallel with the leads which were plainly discernable in the rocks above us, opening out to view the seams of quartarunning nearly N. E. and S. W., in an unmissiakable manner.

Matters of business compelled us to return or we would have prospected more fully to prove the richness of these leads. But on the whole we became well satisfied that the same belt of leads extends still further southwest and is perrough, occasionally renturing forth into the world, but quickly returning to his birthplace and his home. But everybody favors that the Raccoon Bank was born in Chicago, or Springfield, or Milwaukes or some other eity—that it hever had a home, that the bills once out, henceforth have nogoure, not redeem, but as long as the people allow themselves to be savindled by taking them and regarding them as currency, so long they "go," and when the people get tired of so deing and become willing to assume that risk, deby and expense of presenting and protesting, then the Anditor sells the Stocks and closes the affairs of the bank, and how does the "Stock Secured" currency of such banks, turn out? The six per cent bonds of Missouri form the greater part of the security of the Illinois and Wisconsin banks. These stock are now worth eighty-three cents on the dollar in New York, and if any considerable amount was thrown suddenly upon the market they would fall to a much lower figure. With the depreciation in value of the securities and cost of winding up, which would be from ten to fifteen per cent, it is apparent to all, to need farther entacing and poperators and the own of the control of the contr

Messrs. Gridley & Hendersou have commenced a tunnel at the base of the mountain to work their claim. This is an enterprise which may prove beneficial to others on the same lead, and we look to the time when they shall reach their claim as a test of the richness of the quartz leads.

Capt. White, of Oquawka, informs us that a company was formed some time since at Houlders. eempany was formed some time since at Boulder diggings, who have turned the channel of the creek for more than a thousand feet, and are now about to commence sluicing the bed of the creek, expecting a rich booty, as the banks prospected ten cents to the panful. respected ten centa to the panful.

We are satisfied the veins of gold that rui

developed we cannot conjecture, we shall no

ENGLAND AND PRANCE.

Relations of France with Engli Intercleus between Lord Cowiey Emperory-etmportance of the French Alliance—The Armanic France to be Beduced, [Correspondence of the New York Herald.] Pans, July 25, 1855.

Since the return of the Emperor, not a day has elapsed without Lord Cowley, the British Ambassador, receiring at least one audience, but more frequently two. The relations of the two countries is evidently a subject of anxiety, but I know from indisputable authority that the English Foreign Office is, in every respect, as cutirely void of any taint of suspicion as before the opening of the Italian eampaign. Lord Cowley to the English Foreign Office is, in every respect, as cutirely void of any taint of suspicion as before the opening of the Italian eampaign. Lord Cowley may prove a mere optimist, but he has certainly been consistent in the views he has throughout recorded of Napolen's characternamely, that if there is one man in France who deserves to be believed, it is the Emperor. He now writes to his government that his Majesty has again and again repeated to him that he should consider anything like a rupture between France and England as the most terrible shock his policy could sustain; that the Emperor appeals to the forbearance he displays now, as heretofore, to the violent, the atrocious language of the press; and that as to the armaments, he is result to enter into a minute com-Panes, July 28, 1858

A person in Philadelphia has prepared drawings of improved steam engines for city railroads, which, if they possess all the advantages claimed for them, must acon take the place of horses. The Ledger says: claimed for them, must soon take the place of horses. The Lasque says:

The engines are direct acting horizontal ones, with vertical belief of peculiar construction of fire box for consuming smoke. One man only is required to manage the machine, which is done by a couple of levers. By condensing the steam, noise is avoided, and at the same time the feed water for the boller is heated. Steam, hot air, or compressed air may be used, but steam is preferred, as the engines will be continually in motion whether the car is or not. It is designed to box up the machines will be continually in motion whether the car is or not. It is designed to box up the machines on as to present the appearance of an ordinary car with a chimmey like a store pipe. Built upon the plan proposed, the engine will occupy about as much space as the horses. The cars can be heated by steam in the winter, and cooled by a fan in the summer. Another advantage claimed by steam over horses is, that there will not be any dust, and that it can be more easily managed; the cars being stopped in less time. The engines can be applied to the cars now in use, and will, with tase, ascend any of the grades in the city. It is claimed that on the score of economy, steam has a decided advantage over horses, costing from one-third to one-half less. The estimate is, that 32 engines would be of road running 20 cars, which would require 140 horses, and the engines lasting ten years, while the horses would be of thitle value after use of half that time. The engines, too, could be easily repaired, the parts being duplicates of easily repaired, the parts

THE QUEEN OF THE ARENA.

It was a strange scene. The wagon was close to the circus, formed indeed part of it—the poor woman was lying on the low shelf, called the bed, of the traveling caravan; two or three of the wires of the men attached to the exhibition were round her, endeavoring by their exertions to relieve her momentarily increasing pain, and helping her to bear it patiently their sympathy.

"He ought to have been here half an hour ago," said one of the women. "Jim started for him on the plobald over two hours since."

"Why, I thought he was in the Italian toverer?"

"No, he wouldn't run with the spotted mare, so they're put the blind gray with her, and took the piebald in the quadrille for Dick Gravel to take bottom couple with."

The explaustion seemed satisfactory, for silence ensued.

Presently a roar of such laughter as is only heard in a circus at a country village—fresh, genuine, hearty—shook the sides of the frail vehicle.

"What's that?" said the apparently dying woman.

"Doctor," and the sick woman, "how long can I live?"

"Live, woman? why, you're good for another forty years yet."

"No, Doctor, I'm not—I feel I'm not long for this world."

"Oil all nonsense?" said he, "you'll soon get over this." And with like comforting assurances he sought to raise her from her dopressed condition. In about ten minutes he went to the door and said, "Come in here one of you, while I go the gig." He soon came back, and the woman remained with him.

In a little while the clown came up to the group of women outside the door, and leaning in all attitudes against the sides and stops of the wayon.

Here another and louder cry reached them. "Thisre now, asid Whips, "that's it; there's the Corsican Brothers' has been a going round this quarter of an hour, till they're sick of it, and the gray 'll be so lame to-morrow she won't stir a peg. It's no use Bill, you must go."

"I can't Whips; it'll be no use if I do."

"Oh, yes, you will; you must go, or I'll have to throw up the agreement, and you know you've overdrawed your money this last wo weeks."

"Well," said Whips, "you'll go, Bill, won't you?"

"Oh, yes, I'll go," said the man; "go on." They left the wagon, and the repeated rounds of applaues showed that the public was satisfied. The clown was never more witty, never more agile. Somersault after somersault leap after leap, was taken with a recklessness that nothing cenid equal; again and again the encores of the elite, and the bravos of the rulegar, spurred his exertions. At last it ended, and the quadrille came on. The clown left the ring, with the plaudits ringing in his ears, and came to the wagon to find—slas! What?

"What is it?" and the man, now in his out position, close to the body, with her hand lock-ed in his, and his eyes fixed on her face. "What's that?"

"They're calling for her." said Jenny, point-ing to the form in the bed.

There was a lull, and then a long thunder of clapping hands and stamping feet rose and died away. "What's that last ?" asked the woman hold-ground, their applause was unheard by their intended object. She had fainted immediately a reaching the dressing-room, and was at once carried to the moving cham her where she now lay.

But to return. She took, his hand is hers, saying: "Bill, I don't thick I shall go round any more."

"Don't say so, lass, it'll be all right when the doctor comes."

"No, Bill; I feel better, but something tells me I've put on the togs for the last time."

"No, lass, no!" was all the ulterance he could find. "Don't say so, lass, it'll be all right when that London chap, with the French name, that came down to the Doncaster races?"

"O, yes, I know," said the man, half-angrily, as if wishing to avoid 'tie subject.

"Well, you know you said that time that you hought there was something between me and him."

"Well, I know it," said the man, "but don. It ink of that now; don't trouble about that now."

"But I must, Bill. I think I am dying, Bill, dear, and I should like you to think of me when I'm gone as I am truly, Bill."

The man made no ans ver.

"Here, said one of the youngest women, standing up so that she might be seen. "What do you want?"

"Jenny, you'll find the key of the green truck in the china mug with 'Nelly' on it. I wish you'd look in the box, and get me my old Bible out."

Tre girl found the key, and asked where the box was. Jenny gave the child to one of the women, took him by the arm, and led him to the door.

"Bill," said Whips, "here's Chapman as drunk as a beast, and the people crying out tor you like mad. Can't you go?"

"Go!" said he pointing to the body, "how can I go? No, I can't go."

"Well, Bill, you must, it's only the second night, here's the queen away and no clown."

"Well, there's only the Indian warrior to go in," said Bill.

"O dear, I forgot, it's under me," said the man. "There, never mind," said he, "I don't want any fuss about it."
"O, Bill, dear, I wish you'd lift me up a litle, and pull it out. You can put the broken hair under to keep me up then."

"No; never mind," said he, "it'll pain you

"O, Bill, dear, I don't mind, I wish you He did it at last; and, after some trouble and ry in the just finished scene; her wand was still in her hand, and the gauze wings on her shoulders; she took them off, lald down the silvered stick and came to the 'ned."

"Mary, dear, are you there?"
"Yes, mother, I'm just done, and the peo-shoulder."

"Put her on the box, she can't see her," suggested some one; it was pushed to where the child stood, and then the mother said; "Mary, I'm going away."

"O, mother, where to t"

"But before I go I want you to see me and father friends again." The child stared with wonder; but the woman, not byseding her, continued: "Bill, dear, have you got the paper off the Bible? Well, open it at the New Testament."

"Bil, dear, you know you said there was something wrong between that London chap and me. I told you at the time there was not, and you didn't believe me, though you didn't say so; and you don't believe it now," she said with increased energy. "Now, Bill, hear me swear that as I believe I am a dying woman, there was nothing between us, and this child's your own, as much as Mary there is." She kissed the book and said, "Do you believe me now."

She kissed the book and said, "Do you believe me now."

"Yes, yes," said the man, "I do, I do!" as though some spell over him had broken. "I do, Nell, I do! O, Nell what a fool I've been, and what a coward not to believe it before! O, Nell! forgive me, forgive me, I've done you wrong."

The woman raised herself by a great effort to reach his hand, and, kissing it, said: "I do, Bill. I knew you'd do me justice some day."

"O, Nell, it's not too late—not too late! You'll get better, and we'll be as happy as we were before this."

The woman only draw his head to her and.

> rade about a week age. On account of the mount of Oats in the new Spring Wheat, we autong receivers—many of whom had sold their Wheat to arrive, expecting it to grade "No. 1." We trust that they will exercise reasonable patience, before they denounce the system as entirely wrong. The object of the Directors was to make the standard "No. 1," and not connect it with the inferior old crop by giving it the same name. If the inspection, after giving it a fair trial, is found to be too rigid, it is a very easy matter to modify it. The principal objection urged is in calling the second quality of Spring Wheat "No. 2," instead of Standard—as formerly. But the "name" of an article does not change its quality; although we have all along thought it imprudent to change the names of the grades at all. It creates confusion and bewilderment among those who do not keep a constant eye on our market. Another objection is the weight test—some avering that country buyars will be induced to "manufacture" the second quality down to its lowest possible limit, by intermixing it with oats and screenings. We trust the Directors of the Board of Trade will look closely into this matter, and if there are any grounds whatever for such tears, that they will adopt measures that will effectually prevent such a vile adulteration of our good crop.
